About the IES

The Institution of Environmental Sciences

The IES is at the forefront of uniting the interdisciplinary field of environmental science around a shared goal: to work with speed, vision, and expertise to solve the world's most pressing environmental challenges, together.

We lead debate, dissemination, and promotion of environmental science and sustainability, and promote an evidence based approach to decision and policy making to stand up for science, scientists, and the natural world. We believe the application of scientific principles deepens our understanding of the natural environment and sustainable development.

Committed to excellence, we exist to serve our members and the public, constantly seeking innovation and distinction in the services we provide. In upholding the standards and importance of the profession, we maintain a position not only to advocate for environmental science but to act as a catalyst for improvement.

Land Condition Symposium

The Land Condition Symposium (LCS) provides you with a platform to demonstrate your position in the land condition sector, your commitment not just to the environment but to the science which underpins it, and indicates your serious consideration of the issues behind current environmental problems.

What LCS can offer you:

- Attending this high profile event will raise your brand awareness, image, and association with addressing current environmental concerns
- Promotion of your organisation to, and interaction with, your target audience of environmental professionals, academics, and civil servants specialising in land condition
- Demonstration of your company's dedication to the land condition community

Attend the IES's largest land condition event and be part of this fantastic networking opportunity.
