ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

When: Monday 23rd June

Where: Woburn House, London

Join us for the second Dialogue Between Disciplines Conference

The Institution of Environmental Sciences (the IES) is at the forefront of uniting the interdisciplinary field of environmental science around a shared goal: to work with speed, vision, and expertise to solve the world's most pressing environmental challenges, together.

IES members have expertise in areas such as air quality, land condition, and water. These operate as distinct areas within the IES through our communities and sister organisations. However, environmental issues do not sit in neat boxes. Each specialism interacts with others, and often they use different terminology, assessment methodologies and approaches. This can lead to siloed thinking and difficulties when assessments are brought together through processes such as SEA and EIA, and can lead to sub-optimal environmental outcomes. Unlocking multifunctional solutions to the interlinked crises of climate change, biodiversity loss, and pollution are dependent on effective interdisciplinary working, knowledge sharing, and application of systems-thinking approaches.

To bridge some of these gaps we are proud to present the second Dialogue Between Disciplines conference, which will work to actively build on the conversations and outcomes of the inaugural event last year. The conference is dedicated to fostering collaboration and knowledge-sharing between environmental professionals from across specialisms and sectors. We will come together in a shared mission to find sustainable solutions to the triple crisis of climate change, biodiversity loss, and pollution, with the aim of championing solutions and practical action.

Set against the backdrop of these urgent global challenges, we would like to invite you to join us at this important event as a valued sponsor.
